From The Past

Part one
By TomL

I like to go back and try to recollect people and events in the past that had added to our newspapers. How far back I'm going I don't know but here we go!!! I would like to talk about Veterans first then next month more info.

Many years ago I bought the Lady Lake Magazine with a friend and his wife. I would later hire a great sales person Wendy Netherclift. She is still a great friend her and her significant other who was my biggest client for many years Bob Irwin of Bob's Coins and Jewelry near the Villages. Wendy retired and Bob retired and now they are living the dream. They are great friends of my wife and I.

Wendy and I tripled the revenue a year and a half later. The partnership would later be changed and I would become a silent partner. After my non compete was well over I decided to buy a publication in Ocala (not in the same territory) called the Seniors Voice of North Central Florida. I ask my friend if if Lady Lake Magazine was available to buy? My partner friend and his wife contacted me and said they had made arrangements to sell their percentage to me. We came to an agreement and here I was with two newspapers.

In our future we were lucky enough to have some great writer and interview. Robert Balfour was a writer from the Villages papers until he sent me a letter to the editor to run. Of course it was controversial that's why he came to me. Because of my Rogue reputation. It turns out that Robert Balfour was a writer for the Stars and Strips and a personal friend of Ike Eisenhower and his top team. He sent me many pictures that we published of President Eisenhower with Balfour and his team together with some famous Generals we published them. He was a great writer, I printed everything he sent me, it became a column. After many years of writing for our Villages Spectator & Lady Lake papers, he called me one day and gave me some sad news. He had cancer and was not going to have it treated because it would stop his golfing and that's all he had. He said the operation that was available was not a cure and could not play the game he loved GOLF. It was to extend his life. He said I need a favor? I said if it's within my power I will do it. He said I want to continue to write sending two column instead of one save one for later. After I am gone I would like you to run the unprinted columns one per issue as long as they last. I said I agree, but I said if at any time you are not up to it, don't send one I'll run one of the ones that had not run. Robert Balfour sent columns for over a year and one day I got an obit to run from a family member. We ran columns for over a year and a half rerunning some from the past. I remember he said he use to be a spokes person for EZGO Golf carts. I have an old EZGO on my farm it will run through a fresh plowed field. It recently broke. It is hard to find someone who will fix it or work on it. Balfour is missed and was a great writer!!! TomL said that!!!

Another writer I want to mention was Ken Tipper he was in the Royal Navy and would not write about his military experiences. He live in Ocala and started out sending letters to the editor. He came to America got his citizenship and bought a home here. Finally one day he opened up, I think it was Veterans day at the veterans Park. He was telling

Practice Falling To Prevent Falling

What do a bouncy 14-month-old and a drunken sailor have in common? Sooner or later, they are going to fall... and so are you! It is inevitable; unless you curl up on the couch for the rest of your life, you are going to lose your balance and fall. Even if you possess the grace of a stork on one leg or the agility of a Wallenda walking the line, unforeseen hazards like slick floors, stealthy patches of ice, mischievous bumps in the sidewalk, or Fluffy's chew can still pose a threat.

Given that the prospect of taking a fall is practically unavoidable, the question becomes: What can we do to improve our chances of remaining upright? Surprisingly, the answer lies in practicing falling. Now, before you lock me in a padded room, hear me out.

Our younger generation, God help them, loses their balance exponentially more than active seniors. However, they do not fall nearly as much, and when they do fall, the repercussions are significantly less damaging. What gives? Of course, we can always point the finger at too many revolutions around the sun, but what specifically? A look under the hood reveals that as we age, communication or the velocity of our nerves can slow down. The message that we lost our balance is delayed, slowing the reaction response. Those lost milliseconds are all the difference between an embarrassing stumble and a broken hip.

This is where the rubber meets the road; we need to knock the dust off those stolid maturing nerves and teach them how to be unapologetically sassy. When we deliberately, but safely, repetitively practice moving our center of gravity outside of our base of support and then return to the starting position, we hone in on enhancing nerve velocity, increasing the reaction time.

If you are free from pain and do not have any exercise contraindications, this little dandy of an exercise could potentially prevent a broken hip, head trauma, or even death. I call it (forgive me) "Gracefully."

1. Stand in front of your bed with your feet shoulder-width apart.

2. Lean forward until you feel like you're about to fall onto your bed.

3. Experience the discomfort and then return to the starting position. Repeat this exercise sideways and backward, ensuring the bed is ready to catch you.

Here is a link to a video demonstration:

<https://youtu.be/d34sCXSPQlg>

As you progress, increase the speed and incorporate steps in different directions. Dedicate just 5 minutes, 3-4 days a week to this practice, and you'll not only feel the stability benefits but also observe improvements in other activities.

Some say it is not how many times you fall, but rather how many times you get up. I argue it is not how many times you fall, but rather how many times you do not have to get up.

The Villages Elementary of Lady Lake students decorating the Lady Lake Town Hall lobby Christmas tree today for the 18th year. For the first time, the students were surprised with a visit from Santa Claus! The tree is adorned with handmade ornaments the students have worked on throughout the school year and make the Town Hall Christmas tree truly special.

This time-honored tradition highlights the strong relationship the town has with school and embodies the spirit of giving, community, and togetherness. The students were sent home with gifts from Town Hall staff, the Lady Lake Library and the Lady Lake Police Department to thank them for their efforts.

The Villages Elementary of Lady Lake Choir will also be performing holiday favorites at Light Up Lady Lake at the Log Cabin on Dec. 8 at 6:15 p.m. and at the Lady Lake Library at 5:30 p.m. on Dec. 11.

Passing of Former Commissioner Dan Vincent

It is with sadness that the Town of Lady Lake announces the passing of a dedicated public servant, former Lady Lake Commissioner Dan Vincent. As Ward 3 Commissioner, Vincent, of Water Oak, served our community with unwavering commitment for a decade.

Throughout his tenure, former Commissioner Vincent demonstrated a passion for public service, striving to enhance the quality of life for the residents of Lady Lake. His efforts earned him the respect and admiration of his colleagues and constituents alike.

Beyond his role as a commissioner, Commissioner Vincent dedicated an additional year of service on the Planning & Zoning Board, contributing his insights to the thoughtful development and growth of our town.

Vincent was a native of Kansas and an Army Veteran. He retired from a career with AT&T.

During this time, our thoughts are with former Commissioner Vincent's family and friends. We extend our deepest condolences as we remember the impact he made on our community.

Florida State Senate

DENNIS K. BAXLEY

Dear Friends,
The 2024 Legislative Session has officially commenced as we held opening day on January 9th, 2024. Leading up to this momentous day, our Committees have been working diligently throughout December to ensure that we hit the ground running.

The Senate Committee on Health Policy passed the Live Healthy Legislative Package. Aimed at addressing healthcare workforce shortages and advancing innovation in healthcare, this legislation is critical to ensure that every Floridian has access to vital healthcare services. Access to healthcare is critically important at every phase of life, and due to Florida's shortage of healthcare professionals, insurance does not guarantee access. Live Healthy provides robust policy enhancements and strategic investments to generate growth amongst our workforce and stimulate innovation across all sectors of healthcare, expanding access to services and enhancing the quality of care.

The Senate Committee on Fiscal Policy passed a legislative package aimed at cutting burdensome red tape and providing more flexibility to neighborhood public schools across the State of Florida. Through the three critical pieces of legislation contained in this package, the Florida Senate is reaffirming its commitment to support teachers, empower parents, and level the playing field in Florida's K-12 education system.

The Director of Policy and Budget for the Executive Office of the Governor, appeared before the Senate Committee on Appropriations to present the Focus on Florida's Future Budget proposal for Fiscal Year 2024-2025.

The Focus on Florida's Future Budget includes $114.4 billion in total funding for public safety, education, economic development, and other needs across the State of Florida. This budget proposal also maintains $16.3 billion in state reserves, dedicates $455 million to accelerate the reduction of our state's outstanding debt, and provides significant tax relief for Floridians.

The Focus on Florida's Budget establishes record funding for education, increasing the per-student allotment to ensure that all students have access to the full array of educational opportunities. Further, this budget increases the teacher salary allocation, allowing Florida's public schools to recruit and retain the very best teachers.

This budget proposal also provides full funding for affordable housing programs such as the State Apartment Incentive Loan Program, the State Housing Initiative Program, and the Hometown Heroes Program. This funding ensures that the policy measures and funding established in the Live Local Act continue to expand access to affordable housing opportunities.

Additionally, this proposed budget makes significant investments in preserving and protecting Florida's beautiful natural resources. Through strategic funding dedicated to Everglades restoration, water quality improvements, and citrus protection, the Focus on Florida's Future Budget places a specific emphasis ensuring that generations of Floridians will be able to experience an enjoy the paradise we call home. The Senate and House will review and consider the Governor's proposed budget before drafting their own proposed budgets for Fiscal year 2024-2025.

We thank you for taking the time to read this letter and we hope that it has provided insight into the critical areas of need that we will be focusing on this session.

Onward and Upward,
Senator Dennis Baxley

PUBLISHER’S NOTES

Boy are we getting an education in the medical world. My wife was recently moved to a new Medical Doctor. I did not see anything wrong with the doctor that she had but she was talked into it.

While at a Ophthalmologists they found some problem with her eye's. They ask for a full heart workup. They said she needed a full Heart workup and check the blood flow, check for blood clots, Check the carotid artery's and finally they found bad blood flow in her legs. So they stop the big artery from flowing and hope the small vessels will take over. This is going to happen on four artery's two in each leg. On her third visit from Dunnellon to Ocala the nurse Practitioner that had taken over from the Heart doctor suddenly wants to put her on three different kinds of Prescription medications and want to see her back in four weeks. Npw we have a family doctor / Ophthalmologists / a Heart Specialist and a Nurse Practitioner. Something is not right!!!

They want her on Blood Pressure meds / Cholesterol meds/ and etc just in case. This robs your body of it's effectiveness to heal it's self and rob the Insurance company and you wallet. Where do you go to find out what is necessary? It sounds to me like three different doctors want her under their care.The original Heart Specialist is no longer seeing her. I am going to demand to see each Specialist and ask what gives???

A lot of doctors are now treating you and then turning you over to a Nurse Practitioner and their practice grows without them seeing any of the patience but once. I am going to see if I can find someone that is willing to give me a second opinion. Thank God for our health insurance agent Christine Calvert she is local Ocala based.

Because the banks were not paying interest on savings accounts we moved what little bit we have into CD's. Nick Navetta six a financial advisor and has help us a lot with interest growth, we are getting 5 and 6 % on three months to a year. He calls every once and a while asking if where we want him to send us the interest? By the way Nick has an extensive long military career...Thanks for your service!

Speaking of banks...Another thing we are learning about is banking. I am in business and I have been depositing the same check from the same customer for many years. My bank manager says all of a sudden they can't deposit a check. I ask what has changed they said nothing. I have four newspapers and receive checks from customers with the name of the newspaper. They are under an LLC. If the newspapers is not listed in the LLC paper work they will not deposit my checks and I can only have one additional name on the LLC. By the way the bank had many branches so I deposited the check in another branch and it went right through. Now I have to tell all the customer to send a check in the name TomL Publishing LLC. It is a never ending complex world. If I was taking money out of the bank I could see the bank trying to be careful but putting money in the bank, they are not going to lose money. Now I'm getting digital flyers from the bank saying I don't have to have an account at that bank to cash a check...Just pay $5 to cash it! Thanks for the favor. I have a new bank and am fazing out the old one. I have been with the current bank since they have been open. I will tell everyone my story but I will not tell name unless it's a private conversation. But be careful who you do business with I got hack at the same bank.

I really enjoy hearing from our reader. Here is a few...

I am in the military. Love reading your paper Tom Merry Christmas!

Hope to see you at OBL breakfast. Take Care, Jean

FAIRtax

During this time of year many people are more apt to give to charities and that brings up the question "How will the FAIRtax affect charitable giving? Won't I lose my tax benefit?" Charitable contributions depend on one factor more than any other: the health of the economy (not tax benefits). As a wide range of economists agree on the economic expansion the FAIRtax delivers, charitable contributions benefit also. For all the money that pours into churches and a broad range of charities every day, only 30% who itemize their income tax get any tax benefit. The other 70% have given and will continue to give with no tax benefit whatsoever. The FAIRtax allows people to make charitable contributions out of their pre-taxed dollars. Thus those less affluent taxpayers who do not itemize see their cost of charitable giving go down under the FAIRtax. Finally, the wealthy make decisions on charitable giving based on the cause. Once they have determined the cause is worthy, their contribution is structured to maximize the gift and minimize the tax. But the intention to give comes first; taxes simply determine the structure - rarely the amount - of the gift. For more information go to FAIRtax.org another Veteran that his ship was sunk in the war. He said he was in the water (Ocean) with hundreds of troops and every once in a while a shark would attack one of the men. He said it was pitch black and when someone cried out everyone knew what had happened. After daylight the next day they were rescued by an American Ship. Many were suffering from exposure but happy to be alive. Ken said one day that he did not like deadlines an was stopping his column, he started a blog and was happy with that. Another interesting story about a veteran.

I interviewed one of the men that put up the flag on Iwo Jima. I need some help with this one. I can't remember his name. He live in the Villages. He was on a mission to set the record straight, he was the last lone alive and owed it to his comrades. He was there and was the last alive. He felt like he should tell their story. He said the fighting was fierce on Iwo Jima. They were told to raise the flag so that the Japanese would know the US was in control of the Island. A Captain of a Cargo ship was watching the battle from of shore and saw them raise the flag. It inspired him to get a picture. The captain order his crew to get a large flag and go on shore and recreate the Flag Raising. The original men were not there. Some we're fighting on other parts of the island so they gathered some men and recreated the scene. Later the picture was sent around the world and become famous. If you knew him or remember his name I would be please if you could email it to me tloury@att.net I would like to honor him and his mission! We will try to recollect some more events next month.

Cataracts

What You Need to Know About Cataracts

(NAPSI)—By age 80, most people either have cataracts or have had cataract surgery. That's because most cataracts are the result of natural aging. You may not notice that you have a cataract at first. But over time, they can make your vision blurry or hazy, colors fade, you can't see well at night, or you may see double images. The good news is that cataract surgery can restore your sight. With a high success rate of more than 90 percent, cataract surgery enables people to see better after their cataract is removed.

Here are the top six things ophthalmologists—physicians who specialize in medical and surgical eye care—want you to know about cataracts:

1. Cataracts can be removed with surgery. Surgery is the only way to cure cataracts. Early on, you may be able to cope with reduced vision from cataracts by using brighter lights, wearing anti-glare sunglasses, or using magnifying lenses for reading. But if cataracts start getting in the way of everyday activities such as reading, driving, or watching TV, an ophthalmologist will need to remove the clouded natural lens and replace it with an artificial lens, also called an intraocular lens (or IOL), to correct blurry vision.

2. You can slow development of early cataracts. You can take steps to protect your eyes from cataracts. Using 100% UV blocking sunglasses, quitting smoking, maintaining control over high blood sugar, and eating a healthy diet can help prevent cataracts.

3. People with diabetes are more likely to get cataracts. Natural aging is the most common cause of cataracts, but some people are at higher risk for cataracts than others. People who have diabetes with high blood sugar levels can get cataracts quicker and at a younger age than those with normal blood sugar levels. Improving glucose levels may help delay cataracts.

4. Eye color affects your risk of developing cataracts. Studies show that people with dark brown eyes have a higher risk of developing cataracts than people with lighter eyes. However, UV light is a known contributor to cataract development no matter what color your eyes are. Wearing sunglasses whenever outdoors is recommended for everyone.

5. Treating cataracts may decrease your risk of dementia. Though the link between eye health and dementia is unclear, recent studies suggest people who had cataract surgery were 30 percent less likely to develop dementia.

6. You may eventually need a follow-up procedure. Some people will again develop hazy vision years after cataract surgery. This is usually because the lens capsule has become cloudy. The capsule is the part of your eye that holds the IOL in place. Your ophthalmologist can use a laser to open the cloudy capsule and restore clear vision, a procedure called a capsulotomy.

Regular eye exams are important to maintaining your best vision, even after cataract surgery. The American Academy of Ophthalmology recommends scheduling a visit to the ophthalmologist every year after cataract surgery if you're older than 65, or every two years if under 65.

Can't Afford an Eye Exam? EyeCare America® Can Help.

For individuals age 65 or older who are concerned about their risk of eye disease and/or the cost of an eye exam, you may be eligible for a medical eye exam, often at no out-of-pocket cost, through the American Academy of Ophthalmology's EyeCare America® program. This public service program matches volunteer ophthalmologists with eligible patients in need of eye care across the United States. To see if you or a loved one qualifies, visit www.aaoinfo.com/ECApatient to determine your eligibility.

Women Welders

Forging a Path (NAPSI)—“It is not for the faint of heart,” Erica Bridges said.

Bridges is a Welding Technology student at Texas State Technical College (TSTC). She was referring to her field of study and to welding in general.

“I encourage it, though,” she added. “This is a really good money-making (career). The people that you will meet, they're just one-of-a-kind people.”

In the heavily male-dominated industry of welding, only 5.1% of the workers are female, according to a 2022 U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics report. In the fall 2023 semester, TSTC had a total of 94 women and

970 men enrolled in Welding Technology.

What To Know

To help others understand, some female welding students, instructors and alumni from TSTC recently spoke of their experiences in welding and their love for it. They also talked about some of its challenges.

TSTC welding instructor Samara Flener has seen positive changes in her 20-plus years of working in the industry, but said preconceived notions about female welders still remain.

"That climate has improved, (but) some days you have to put on your Teflon suit, go out there, get the job done, and let it slide off," she said.

TSTC Welding Technology alumna Tatum McFarland echoed Flener's mentality about being among the few females in the industry.

"It hasn't been easy," McFarland said. "And you just kind of got to grow a backbone, more or less, to be able to work with (men)."

Haylee Phillips, a first-semester TSTC Welding Technology student, said that before beginning the welding program, she was worried about how she would be perceived by the male students.

"I was intimidated at first," she said. "Especially a few weeks before school, I was like, 'They're going to treat me all weird because I'm a girl.' But if you shut it off and go to learn, you'll succeed."

Another TSTC Welding Technology student, Alondra Ramos, is pursuing welding despite a lack of encouragement from her parents.

"I didn't have a lot of support coming into the welding industry and doing this," she said. "I'm here to prove them wrong in a lot of stuff. I always got pushed down, but I've always tried my hardest to come out on top and to prove everybody wrong."

What It's Like

Flener acknowledged the fact that being a welder can be grueling.

"Welding is not for everybody," she said. "Some aspects of welding can be extremely physically demanding, and you have to be able to work in that environment."

Phillips feels the same way but said the effort is worth it.

"It's hard," she said. "I mean, it's hot all the time. I'm sweating from the minute I walk into the shop in the morning until I leave in the evening. You're lifting heavy stuff, your arms get super tired, and you're in uncomfortable positions. I think there are a lot of women who just aren't interested in that type of lifestyle for a career path. But me, I mean, I know the money that comes with it, so I'm willing to suffer a little bit."

Why They Do It

Despite the challenges, each woman spoke to a love of welding that outweighs any obstacles.

"It's like an escape from the world; it's like you're at peace," Ramos said. "Most of my stress goes away when I'm under the (welding) hood. I love it."

Phillips said, for her, it is the satisfaction of being able to look at something that she has had a hand in building.

"It'd be cool to see a rocket that I welded something on go up into space and be like, 'I was a part of that,'" she said. "I get to look at my work and see what it's for, and see that I helped. That's pretty cool."

Flener encouraged those with a love for welding to pursue it despite any roadblocks that may come their way.

"Regardless of who you are, if you love it, seek out those opportunities that will allow you to be in an environment that works for you," she said. "Don't be afraid to try out a job, and if it doesn't work out, move on to the next thing. Don't call it failing. It's figuring out where you fit."

Tasteful Way To Do Good

(NAPSI)—There's good news for a lot of people from what some might consider a surprising source.

Corporate Compassion

America's businesses, large and small, are increasingly extending a hand to help others. In fact, according to Chief Executives for Corporate Purpose, the average corporate volunteer participation rate is 33%.

What One Firm Is Doing

When most people hear the word “paella,” they imagine the wondrous Spanish rice dish cooking on an open flame. But the folks at H/L, a fiercely creative marketing and advertising agency that makes momentum for clients, have a whole different meaning for the word. In fact, they've started a movement, Project Paella, and it's all about giving back to the communities in which they live and work.

Project Paella was established in memory of Josh Nichol, H/L's former CEO. Josh loved getting the team together every year, over a huge pan of rich, simmering seafood and sausage. There was a lot of symbolism in his paella. It was made of many ingredients and flavored by many cultures, just like the company he led. And most of all, it was celebratory. His spirit lives on today, when the team comes together each year to mix in communities and celebrate them by doing good from coast to coast. The team bands together and volunteers in homeless shelters, animal shelters, food banks, roadside cleanups and wherever else they can make a difference.

This year, more than 125 H/L employees spent over 350 hours of volunteer time helping out in local communities across the country. From Hawaii to California to Florida, the team partnered with 20 different organizations, including Ronald McDonald House, Glide Memorial, Second Harvest, Chicago Food Pantry and many more to make a difference in each community.

“Our local H/L Agency team dedicated their time to beautifying the outdoor space of our Ronald McDonald House Charities of Tampa Bay (RMHC-TB) Tampa House by cleaning up our numerous garden beds during the agency's Project Paella. With three H/L teammates, this group was prepared to assist in any way that was needed! We're grateful they helped to maintain our serene backyard space, keeping it enjoyable for RMHC-TB families,” said Bryanna Tremontana, Manager of Community Engagement RMHC-TB.

The key to making a Josh-inspired paella is equal parts attitude, good-quality ingredients and technique, plus lobster tails.

Josh-inspired Paella

- Follow your favorite paella recipe.
- Embellish with Spanish spices including sweet and smoky paprika and, of course, a healthy pinch or two of saffron—make sure to get the good stuff.

- Whether it's a chicken, rabbit or seafood paella, be sure to nestle in a few lobster tails.

Top it all off with some red and green—pimiento stuffed green olives, asparagus spears, fresh or frozen peas, chopped tomato and lots of torn flat-leaf parsley.

Garnish with plenty of lemons wedges.

FROM THE DESK OF
CONGRESSWOMAN KAT CAMMACK

GAINESVILLE, FL — Today, Congresswoman Kat Cammack announced Kartikeya Rajderkar of Gainesville as a Congressional Award Silver Medal recipient.

Rajderkar, a local Eagle Scout and Eastside High School student, is one of 3,797 young people to receive the award this year and the only from Florida's Third Congressional District.

The Congressional Award provides opportunities for young people to unleash their potential by achieving personal goals focused on volunteerism, character development, and fitness. Established in 1979 by the United States Congress, the Congressional Award is the United States Congress' award for young Americans, and is non-partisan, voluntary, and non-competitive. The program is open to all youth in the U.S. between the ages of 14 and 24 regardless of ability, circumstance, or economic status.

"Congratulations to Mr. Rajderkar on his impressive accomplishment," said Congresswoman Kat Cammack. "The participants of the Congressional Award make real differences in our communities and Kartikeya truly represents the very best of young students nationwide. His dedication to earn the rank of Eagle Scout while participating in a variety of service projects throughout the community is admirable, and I'm excited to present him with this honor."

To earn the silver medal, Rajderkar completed hundreds of hours of service in the community while pursuing art, track & field, and music. As an Eagle Scout, Rajderkar completed his Eagle Scout project with a local food bank, building railings for the stairs to the loading docks. With the help of 20 other volunteers, he completed his project and earned the highest rank attainable.

Rajderkar is also passionate about art and music, entering fine arts competitions across North Central Florida. During his high school career, he earned several 'excellent' and 'superior' ratings for violin, earning first place at the State Violin Convention in 2021 for his fiddling solo. As a member of the Eastside High School Varsity Cross Country and Track teams, Rajderkar helped his team to region and district wins the last three years, making it to the state championship for the 5K race.

He also earned Lake Forest Volunteer of the Year, participating in a wide variety of volunteering activities with the Alachua County Public Library, Lake Forest Elementary School, India Cultural & Education Center (ICEC) in Gainesville, the Natural History Museum, and the Good News Summer Arts Camp in High Springs.

Rajderkar will be honored during a visit with Rep. Cammack in Gainesville later this week.

Rep. Cammack Receives 2023 Congressional Bone Health Champion Award

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Bone Health and Osteoporosis Foundation (BHO^F) is pleased to announce that Rep. Kat Cammack (R-FL) has been selected to receive the 2023 Congressional Bone Health Champion Award. The national award annually recognizes four Members of Congress who have demonstrated outstanding leadership, advocacy, and commitment to protect and improve the bone health of Americans. BHOFF, the leading health organization dedicated to preventing osteoporosis and promoting strong bones for life, presents the awards to highlight the importance of bone health and raise awareness about the osteoporosis crisis in the U.S. The other 2023 winners are Sen. John Barrasso (R-WY), Senator Tammy Baldwin (D-WI) and Rep. Susie Lee (D-NV).

Rep. Cammack is co-chair of the Congressional Caucus for Women's Issues and a member of the House Energy and Commerce Committee which has jurisdiction over Medicare and other key health programs. Rep. Cammack joined with the Caucus and the Bone Health and Osteoporosis Foundation in sponsoring a congressional briefing on women's bone health throughout the lifetime. This briefing provided a great opportunity to raise awareness about osteoporosis and promote action to improve the bone health of all Americans. In Florida, with its large senior population, 144,000 Medicare beneficiaries suffered over 172,500 fractures tied to osteoporosis in 2016.

"The importance of bone health and its impact on an individual's overall health as well as healthcare costs is often overlooked by policymakers," said Claire Gill, CEO of the Bone Health and Osteoporosis Foundation. "We greatly appreciate Rep. Cammack's work to raise awareness and shed light on what is a crisis in bone health in the United States. We know what needs to be done to address this crisis. There are simple steps Congress and the Biden Administration can take that would greatly improve the care of millions of Americans with osteoporosis."

Rep. Cammack said, "It's an honor to be named one of this year's Congressional Bone Health Champion Award recipients. As a co-chair of the Bipartisan Women's Caucus, women's health is one of our top priorities, and we were fortunate to hold a bone health briefing earlier this year. For women—and adults across the U.S.—bone health is too often overlooked, but it's an important part of an individual's overall health. I look forward to continuing to raise awareness around this issue."

Osteoporosis is a growing yet often ignored healthcare problem that disproportionately impacts women. Ten million Americans have osteoporosis and 44 million are at high risk of the disease due to low bone density. According to a 2021 report, two million Medicare beneficiaries (about 70 percent women) suffered up to 2.1 million osteoporotic bone fractures in 2016. For women, the risk of any osteoporotic fracture is greater than their risk of a heart attack, stroke or breast cancer combined. The total annual cost for osteoporotic fractures among Medicare beneficiaries was $57 billion in 2018 and is expected to grow to over $95 billion in 2040 without reforms, as the population ages.

FROM THE DESK OF ATTORNEY GENERAL MOODY

ATTORNEY
GENERAL
MOODY AND GOVERNOR
REQUIRING

TARGETS TO REDUCE ON-ROAD CO2
EMISSIONS

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—Attorney General Ashley Moody is pushing back against the Biden administration's federal overreach. Attorney General Moody, with the support of Governor Ron DeSantis, filed a lawsuit challenging a new Biden administration rule requiring all states with National Highway System mileage to set arbitrary emissions targets. In addition to today's announcement, Florida's foresight and prudent fiscal management practices are now the standard-bearer amongst states given FDOT being the sole state to take the responsible step by no longer participating in USDOT's carbon reduction program.

According to this new rule, states are required to set arbitrary targets for reduced CO2 emissions, to track progress towards said targets and report to the federal government goal progress. This rule forces states to spend an inordinate amount of time, resources and money with no clear guidance for what success looks like. The complaint argues that Congress has not given the U.S. Department of Transportation the authority to regulate greenhouse gas emissions.

Attorney General Ashley Moody said, "As if Biden's unfounded and reckless energy policies haven't devastated our economy enough, this new, foolhardy edict from the U.S. Department of Transportation will create even more financial hardships for our state and Floridians. We're taking action today to ensure that this misguided new-emissions rule does not stand."

Governor Ron DeSantis said, "Florida will not sit idly by while the Biden Administration tries to force the Green New Deal into existence through the U.S. Department of Transportation. Florida will always fight for freedom and against the federal government's unlawful efforts to control the American people."

Florida Department of Transportation Secretary Jared W. Perdue, P.E. said, "FDOT has continued to voice concerns about the rule for well over a year, yet never received complete answers before the rule was finalized—clearly showing it was done to push the federal government's agenda for the Green New Deal and is not reflective of a collaborative effort from states across the country. Operating in this manner is irresponsible and reckless, which is why Florida proudly stands united with these other states to safeguard the freedoms that this nation is so well known for."

In the complaint filed today in federal court, Attorney General Moody and a 21-state coalition of attorneys general assert that DOT's Federal Highway Administration overstepped its legal authority. The coalition writes, "Congress has not given FHWA or USDOT authority to regulate greenhouse gas emissions ('GHG'). Nor can the Agencies compel the States to administer a federal regulatory program or mandate them to further Executive policy wishes absent some other authority to do so—which is lacking as to this rule."

The action also makes clear that the proposed measure violates the principles of federalism by requiring states to implement a federal regulatory program. The complaint explains: "The Constitution is also clear that action by the States cannot be mandated through federal action like the Final Rule. 'The Federal Government may not compel the States to enact or administer a federal regulatory program.' [because] 'the Constitution protects us from our own best intentions: It divides power among sovereigns and among branches of government precisely so that we may resist the temptation to concentrate power in one location as an expedient solution to the crisis of the day.'" Accordingly, "[e]ven if Congress believed the Final Rule was the best means of reducing CO2 in order to address climate change, the States could not be directed to implement the policy choices of the federal government."

Further, the attorneys general note that FHWA previously issued a similar rule, soon repealed after the agency determined that the measure may duplicate "existing efforts in some States" and imposed "unnecessary burdens on State DOTs and MPOs [metropolitan planning organizations] that were not contemplated by Congress."

In addition to Attorney General Moody, the following states signed onto the complaint: Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Utah, Virginia, South Carolina, South Dakota, West Virginia, and Wyoming.

Attorney General and other officials gather in Kissimmee for impaired driving awareness

KISSIMMEE, Fla.—

The month of December breaks records for lives lost due to impaired driving.

It's a statistic that local law enforcement agencies are hoping to change.

Attorney General Ashley Moody and other officials gathered in Osceola County on Thursday to promote safe driving during the holiday season.

DUI arrests peak between Christmas and New Year's, Moody said, emphasizing that more people are going to holiday events and then choosing to drive impaired this time of the year.

Moody, along with Osceola Sheriff Marcos Lopez, urged Central Florida to make better decisions this year.

"If we catch you, you will go to jail," Moody said, adding that impaired drivers were not only risking jail, but also the morgue.

"Chad and Sarah were born and raised right here in Central Florida," Deanna Hehmann, the mother-in-law Hehmann lost her son-in-law after he was hit and killed by an impaired driver who was going over 80 miles an hour.

"On September the 21st, 2019, we laid Chad to rest, three days before his 22nd birthday," Hehmann said.

She says he left behind his high school sweetheart, Deanna's daughter, and their two twin boys.

The driver admitted to being under the influence.

Moody says in 2022, there were 6,200 crashes caused by impaired driving.

She says 1,100 of those were fatal, and 600 of them were all in the month of December.

"We have to remember that when we talk about these statistics, they're not just numbers. They represent people and families and lives," Moody said.

"You know, this year alone, we arrested 310 people for driving under the influence of drugs and alcohol. That means there was 310 people who didn't care about you, your loved ones, your family members and were arrested," Lopez said.

Moody gave tips on staying safe this holiday season, which included utilizing rideshare services, reporting any suspicious drivers to FHP and being vigilant when driving at night during the holidays.

"If you do choose to drink while you're socializing, we want you to be merry, but we want you to be safe, so please use a ride-sharing service or designate a driver or call someone for help," Moody said.

"Now is the time for action to end this 100% preventable crime," Hehmann said.

AAA also offers their tow-to-go service as well. They'll tow your car to your home and take you home, too.

ATTORNEY GENERAL MOODY
URGES PARENTS TO PRIORITIZE CHILD ONLINE SAFETY ON NATIONALAPPDAY

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—On National App Day, Attorney General Ashley Moody is encouraging parents and guardians to protect children online by monitoring a child's activities on mobile phones and implementing parental control measures.

According to research, 95% of teenagers have a smartphone and 43% of children ages 8 to 12 also have a smartphone.

Online predators and traffickers lurk on mobile apps and social media to target children. Attorney General Moody is offering online safety tips for parents to protect children from digital drug dealers, sexual predators and human traffickers.

Attorney General Ashley Moody said, "On National App Day, I'm urging parents to pay attention to what children are doing on their phones. There are many apps out there, and while some may be helpful, it is important to know there are dangers lurking in cyberspace—from digital drug dealers to online predators and traffickers. Please, be aware of what your children are looking at online and who they are talking to and use parental controls to keep them safe."

Attorney General Moody is offering essential tips for parents to enhance their child's online safety:

- Open Communication: Talk about online safety, and encourage children to share concerning encounters while using mobile apps;

- Set Boundaries: Set clear guidelines on what children can view and share while using mobile devices;

- Use Parental Controls: Enable

parental controls on devices and apps. These allow parents to manage and restrict content, screen time and more;

- Regularly Monitor: Routinely review a child's mobile activity. Stay informed about the apps being used and interactions that happen with people online. Keep in mind that many apps have a vanishing feature where messages will disappear after being read; and

- Stay Updated: Be informed about the latest trends in apps and digital platforms. Being aware of emerging apps helps in understanding potential risks.

Last year, Attorney General Moody released the Online Safety Toolkit, designed to help empower parents to teach their children about the dangers of human traffickers online. The toolkit contains a list of apps commonly used by predators that parents need to know about.

Attorney General Moody previously shared parental control resources to help parents protect children online.

100 Years Of Honoring Heroes

Then

One hundred years ago, America was undertaking a solemn national responsibility unlike any it had previously faced. World War I had just ended, taking the lives of more than 100,000 Americans, and the logistics and cost to bring their remains home were overwhelming for the nation. At the same time, America refused to back down on the promise to give the fallen a respectful place of rest.

The War Department decided to send letters to 74,770 next-of-kin, asking if they would like their loved ones to be brought home or if they would agree to have them laid to rest permanently near the battlefields of Europe. More than 30,000 families elected to have their fallen service members forever honored on the continent they helped saved. This began a tradition that continued after World War II.

Now

In 1923, the American Battle Monuments Commission (ABMC) was established as a federal agency to act as the guardian of American military cemeteries and memorials abroad. Today, ABMC oversees 31 military monuments and 26 burial grounds on five continents, holding more than 123,000 graves.

While these sites remember sacrifices made generations ago, ABMC ensures they remain pristine, stately and awe-inspiring. In ABMC cemeteries, thousands of precisely aligned white headstones mark the graves of the fallen equally, without regard to rank, race, or religion—a historic decision for the segregated era in which they were created. Many sites also contain towering Walls of the Missing, etched with tens of thousands of names who have yet to be recovered. These burial grounds are set in reverent landscapes, adorned with distinguished art and architecture, and are cared for by a staff of both Americans and local citizens.

ABMC's mission has evolved over the last century. In its early years, ABMC's sites served largely as places of grieving and remembrance for relatives and comrades. Today, they have become places of education to ensure that new generations know the sacrifice and achievements of those ABMC memorializes and those with whom they served.

What You Can Do

On ABMC's centennial anniversary, Americans are invited to virtually explore its cemeteries and memorials, visit one of the sites in person, or search ABMC's online register at ABMC.gov to discover a connection to one of the patriots the agency proudly honors. By making remembrance an action, you will help the nation continue to uphold the promissory words of ABMC's first chairman, General John J. Pershing, who said, “Time will not dim the glory of their deeds.”

Internet Connections Made Easier

(NAPSI)—A fast, reliable Internet connection is essential to many of our daily lives. However, many Americans still struggle to stay connected.

That's where the Affordable Connectivity Program (ACP) can come in.

ACP extends the Internet subsidy for families in need that began under the Emergency Broadband Benefit (EBB) program. Falling under the $1.2T bipartisan Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act, the ACP is part of a $65 billion broadband Internet initiative designed to bring affordable or even free Internet service to families who qualify.

Eligible households can save up to $30 a month, or up to $75 if they reside on tribal lands.

So, who qualifies? Here's a glance at the different criteria from the FCC of which one or more is required:

- Household at or below 200% of the Federal Poverty Guidelines.
- Participants in certain assistance programs, such as SNAP, Medicaid, Federal Public Housing Assistance, SSI, WIC, or Lifeline.
- Participants in tribal-specific programs, such as Bureau of Indian Affairs General Assistance, Tribal TANF, or Food Distribution Program on Indian Reservations.
- Participants in the National School Lunch or Breakfast Program, including through the USDA Community Eligibility Provision.
- Anyone who received a Federal Pell Grant during the current award year.
- Everyone who meets the eligibility criteria for a participating provider's existing low-income Internet program.
